

BRADY'S CENTER TO DISARM HATE

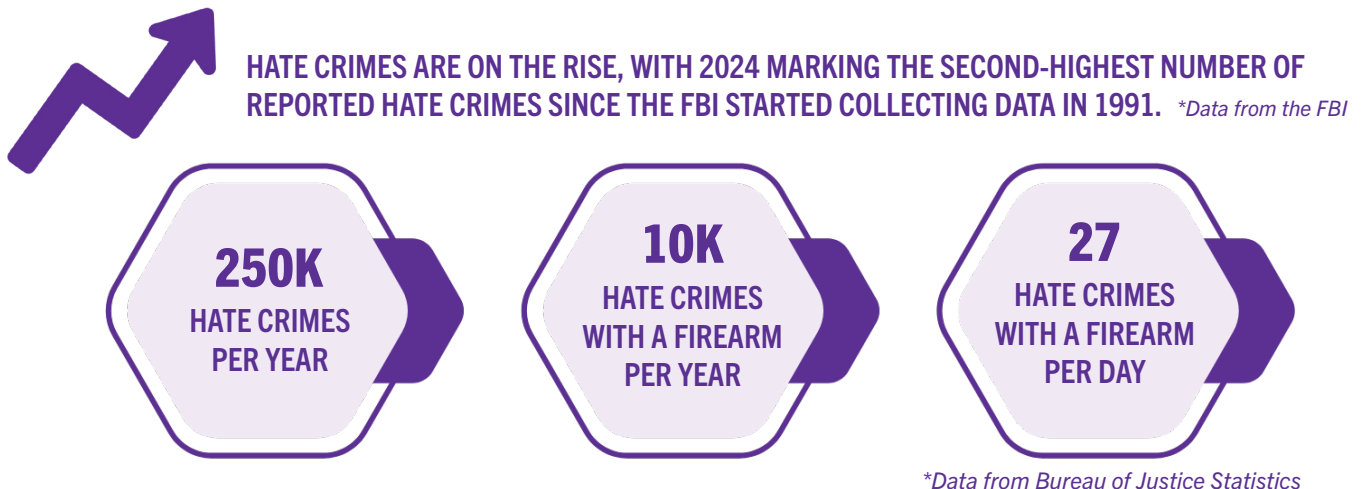

Established in response to the 2016 Pulse shooting, which targeted an LGBTQ+ nightclub, Brady's Disarm Hate Center is focused on preventing hate-motivated gun violence.

As the country's leading expert on gun violence prevention, Brady knows that hate and guns are a fatal combination. To combat this deadly nexus, Brady helps advance state and federal anti-hate legislation, represents victims of hate crimes in court, and engages community groups and religious organizations on solutions to prevent these targeted shootings.

OUR SOLUTIONS

1. Keep Guns Away from Hate Crime Offenders

People convicted of violent hate crimes are likely to commit future violence, yet only 11 states prohibit them from buying or possessing firearms. Brady is working to expand these protections to more states, helping keep guns out of the hands of dangerous offenders and prevent hate-fueled gun violence before it happens.

2. Expand Extreme Risk Laws ("Red Flag" Laws)

Extreme risk laws temporarily remove firearms from people who pose a danger to themselves or others. Many shooters behind hate-motivated shootings — including those at Pulse nightclub, Tree of Life synagogue, and a Buffalo supermarket — showed warning signs that these laws are designed to address. Brady helped pass extreme risk laws in more than 20 states and leads educational campaigns to ensure communities know how to use these lifesaving tools.

3. Keep Guns Out of Sensitive Public Places

After the Supreme Court's 2022 ruling expanding rights to carry guns in public, states have stepped up efforts to keep guns out of sensitive places where people gather, including schools, parks, restaurants, and polling locations. Brady has supported legislation in more than 10 states to strengthen these public safety protections.

4. Provide Free Legal Support for Hate Crime Victims

Hate crime survivors should not have to face the aftermath of violence alone. For 50 years, Brady has represented victims of gun violence at no cost, including survivors of hate-motivated attacks such as the Poway synagogue shooting. Brady secured more than $134 million for victims and survivors through settlements and verdicts.

5. Partner with Faith Leaders and Community Groups to Prevent Gun Violence

Brady works with faith leaders, congregations, and local organizations representing communities disproportionately impacted by hate crimes to increase awareness about gun violence and evidence-based public health solutions. These partnerships empower communities to build safer, more resilient neighborhoods.

6. Ban Assault Weapons

Assault weapons are the weapon of choice for America's deadliest mass shooters. They have facilitated several high-profile hate-motivated attacks, including the mass shootings at the Tree of Life synagogue and an El Paso Walmart. Brady helped pass assault weapons bans in about a dozen states and continues working to expand and defend these laws.

7. Build Grassroots Leadership

Brady's grassroots network and our youth movement of more than 400 Team ENOUGH members train and educate advocates to spread awareness about extreme risk laws, support legal and policy reform, and engage local lawmakers on solutions to reduce hate-driven gun violence. According to the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), evidence-based community education and violence prevention can reduce violent behavior by 15%.

"Hate exists all around the world, but our country allows it to become violent with such easy access to firearms."
